

November 15, 2002

PUAF 700: U.S. Trade: Policy and Politics
Spring 2001

PART TWO: THREE CRITICAL PERSPECTIVES

Following is the signups for Part II. As discussed earlier, the responsibility this time is not a formal presentation, but rather (a) to make a structured critical contribution to discussion of the week's book; and, in general, (b) to play a particularly active role in that discussion.

Each student is expected to read each book, and participate in each discussion. We need to pay particular attention to the logic of authors' basic arguments, relating them as appropriate to analyses encountered earlier in the seminar.

Papers on the books which students choose for special attention are due the week following the session. Again the papers should be double-spaced. The maximum is again 1700 words—please provide a word-count.

December 4: Breaking the Social Contract?

Reading: Dani Rodrik, Has Globalization Gone Too Far?

Hyun Koo Cho, Andy Royle, Tomo Sho

December 4: Why Did NAFTA Happen?

Reading: Frederick Meyer, Interpreting NAFTA.

Aman Boyd, Yas Fukahori, Jen Moughalian

December 11: Globalization: A Financial Roller Coaster?

Reading: Paul Blustein, The Chastening: Inside the Crisis that Rocked th Global Financial System and Humbled the IMF

Rene Bartholomew, Preston Jacobs, Wesley Johnson, Kevin Jones